

Membership and Network

*It is possible for us to learn together from each other, without being later in each others way.
It is possible for us to help each other and be on the right way, without attaining at the same destination and same goal.*

It is possible for us to attain at the same destination and goal, without having planned it together. (Confucius)

In order to give a good advice, one has to learn the lessons of the past, to analyze the present and to recognize the opportunities of the future. This cannot be learned alone by researching in an ivory tower or from books and e-learning programs. Combining experience (external and internal), exchange, discussion, critics, feed-back and collective thinking is also needed. I am member of different groups of experts, networks and platforms, with the goal of research and develop with others in the field of consultancy, with the objective of further training and building sustainable co-operations.
